YOUR FEEDBACK

LINEUP LOVE! Ninety minutes of Survivor followed by 90 minutes of The Amazing Race? Best primetime Wednesday ever! Make it permanent, CBS. —Susan

STALE TALES Crossovers used to be special occasions, but now they're really overused. It can be hard for some of the newer shows in a franchise to stand on their own. —Adam

NO LAUGHING MATTER I've watched Jeopardy! for years, but I will probably quit watching ABC's Celebrity Jeopardy! A lot of the celebrities, especially comedians (without mentioning names, two were on the October 2 show), don't seem to take the game seriously. If I want to see comics perform, I will go to the Laugh Factory. —Beverly

PARADISE PROBLEMS I used to love NCIS: Hawai'i on CBS. I now find myself fast-forwarding. Please stick to the action sequences and concentrate less on the love affairs. —Beth

BADASS MOM Mekia Cox deserves an Emmy for her birthing performance as Nyla Harper in the October 2 episode of ABC's The Rookie. She was already great, but this episode set her right over the top! —Cynthia

Hitting a Bum Note

Gwen, John, Blake and new coach Camila Cabello continue turning their chairs for the best singers in Season 22 of the competition—but 750,000 viewers have turned away from the show compared to the same point in Season 21.

Mom and Todd Win

The news was good for the launch of the drama starring Marcia Gay Harden and Skylar Astin as attorney mother and private investigator son: No. 1 in its timeslot and also the highest-rated new series so far in the 2022–23 season.

All Hail Robyn McCall

The Queen Latifah crime drama was anything but equal to the competition: Its third season premiere was the most watched scripted series for the week.

From Sizzle to Fizzle

The heat on the firefighter drama starring Angela Bassett may be cooling. Though it found a spot on the low end of the chart (and was Fox's only entry), it came in fourth in its timeslot.

First Look

The popular procedural, which originally ran from 2005 to 2020, was never shy about showing the darker side of the many cases the Behavioral Analysis Unit team worked on—and those storylines will be even more unsettling when Criminal Minds: Evolution premieres its first two episodes on Thanksgiving, November 24, on Paramount+. “I’ve always been a defender of the fact that our show gave that realistic aspect to what these real men and women do,” says Joe Mantegna (left, with Adam Rodriguez and A.J. Cook). “If you think you were disturbed before, we may be taking it to another level.” Showrunner Erica Messer also promises the revival will let fans in on what the characters have been up to, teasing, “These past few years have made [them] count on one another a lot more.”

The Movie We’re Talking About in the Office

When you think of Allison Janney (below), iconic and Emmy-winning roles like whip-smart press secretary C.J. Cregg on The West Wing or recovering addict Bonnie Plunkett on Mom come to mind. In the Netflix thriller Lou, the actress adds a new title to the list: action hero. Set in 1986 Washington state, the film stars Janney as loner Lou Adell, a woman of a few words whose only friend is her dog Jax. But when the young daughter of Lou’s tenant, a single mom named Hannah (Jurnee Smollett), is kidnapped, Lou reveals adept retrieval skills that nobody knew existed—and that’s just one of many inspired twists! —Jim Halterman

ANGELA LANSBURY (1925–2022)

BY MATT ROUSH

She scored her first of three Oscar nominations as a teenager. She went on to conquer the Great White Way, reaping five Tony Awards in a Broadway career spanning more than five decades. But Angela Lansbury, who died October 11 at 96, only truly became a cherished household name as a TV star, at a time in life when many would be thinking of retiring. Nearing 60, Lansbury was an overnight sensation as Murder, She Wrote's uncannily intuitive and adorably sincere amateur sleuth Jessica Fletcher, a role originally designed for All in the Family's Jean Stapleton. The spunky New England widow and mystery writer solved puzzling cases wherever she went, making Murder a blockbuster, against-the-odds hit for CBS, dominating Sunday ratings during a run from 1984 to 1996. She earned 12 consecutive Emmy nominations, never winning a trophy but taking consolation at having won the hearts of America.

Shortly after the series ended production, Lansbury penned her own farewell tribute to her most immortal creation in a TV GUIDE MAGAZINE essay, thanking her millions of fans. "My dearest wish is that those who enjoyed Jessica's adventures will remember her as I do: an active, mature woman, possessed of courage, independence and wit, broad-minded and young at heart, a champion of the wrongfully accused."

Many of those attributes applied to Lansbury herself, a show-business survivor who, at 14, fled the London blitz during World War II with her family, arriving in the U.S. "with nothing, no money at all. I was always forced to manage," she told us in 1992. For years, she was undervalued by Hollywood: "I was always in makeup to play beastly women in their forties or fifties. My movies were usually stinkers."

Lansbury had better luck on Broadway, proving her box-office potential in hit musicals. She won Tonys as the eccentric socialite in Mame, as overbearing stage mother Mama Rose in the first revival of Gypsy and, in a return to her character-actor roots, as the wacky, murderous Mrs. Lovett in the original production of Stephen Sondheim's Sweeney Todd (later filmed for TV). Generations of kids recognize her voice as Mrs. Potts in Disney's Oscar-winning Beauty and the Beast.

Above: Lansbury with Ron Masak and William Windom on the Murder, She Wrote set; three of several TV GUIDE MAGAZINE covers the icon graced during her career (March 9, 1985; February 15, 1986; and December 26, 1992, respectively)

On Murder, She Wrote, Lansbury exercised her clout, eventually becoming an executive producer and championing Jessica's transformation from a dowdy Maine matron into a more sophisticated world traveler (with a New York apartment!) who could never be mistaken for Agatha Christie's spinsterish Miss Marple—whom she once played in the 1980 film The Mirror Crack'd.

"People didn't want to see me looking frumpy. Women didn't, and neither did men," she said in a 1988 interview. "She discovered that she was attractive and that men paid attention. And why not? Her sense of romance was still in her life and that was very refreshing."

Off set, Lansbury was devoted to her family, including her late husband Peter Shaw, who ran their production company, and son Anthony, who directed many Murder, She Wrote episodes. By the end of its run, the series had become a family affair, securing Lansbury's legacy for all time.

The Roush Review

BY MATT ROUSH

@TVGMMattRoush

Fridays, Apple TV+ I KNOW FEW

pleasures greater than digging into a fat, sprawling novel. Having come of age during the first golden wave of sagas translated into gripping 1970s miniseries (QB VII, Rich Man, Poor Man, Roots), I still get excited at the prospect.

Of all the streamers, Apple TV+ is upholding the tradition with the greatest fidelity: earlier with the magnificent Pachinko, about Koreans displaced to Japan in the last century, and now with the equally exotic and epic Shantaram.

Adapting Gregory David Roberts' 936-page tome about an Australian fugitive seeking purpose, redemption and possibly love amid the chaos of 1980s Bombay, Apple's Shantaram barely scratches the surface in the 12 episodes of its densely plotted, occasionally overripe first season. (Given where they end the story, there had better be a second.)

"The first thing I noticed was the smell," reflects Lin (the effortlessly charismatic Charlie Hunnam) as he steps off the plane after a successful escape from a brutal Australian prison. He shows his true colors when he adds, "It was the smell of hope."

Lin (his assumed name), you see, is an optimist,

Shantaram

Hunnam:
A fugitive in Bombay

an altruist, a flawed man doing good deeds to compensate for the black mark on his soul. (I kept being reminded of Jean Valjean from Les Misérables.)

He savors his newfound freedom in India but fears exposure—which becomes an issue when he earns fame while using his paramedic training to tend to his neglected neighbors in the slum where he lives. (Shantaram, a title the series has yet to explain, refers to Lin's reputation as a "man of peace," ironic considering how much violence he keeps inadvertently trailing in his wake.)

Lin's wide circle of acquaintances includes the alluring Karla (Antonia Desplat), an enigmatic dealmaker who introduces him to a group of colorful fellow exiles. He also falls under the sway of the philosophical gangster Khader Khan (sly Alexander Siddig), a would-be godfather who weighs "how much sin is in the crime," even while stirring a potent stew of political and criminal manipulation into a gang war that puts Lin and his beloved slum dwellers in the crosshairs.

But the relationship that defines Shantaram is Lin's deep friendship with the loyal and resourceful guide/sidekick Prabhu (charming Shubham Saraf), whose generous grin could melt anyone's heart. He's worthy of his own series. ★★★★★

Documentary Now!

Wednesdays, 10/9c, IFC

THE BEST FORM of parody is when you don't need to know the source to appreciate the joke, although when you do, the laughs are even richer. So it is with the brilliant short films of Documentary Now! in its fourth (they call it 53rd) season, taking the notion of a mock documentary to a new level. I'd never heard of 1994's fly-on-the-wall Three Salons at the Seaside, but that didn't diminish my delight in "Two Hairdressers in Bagglyport" (October 26), which features the great Cate Blanchett and Harriet Walter as Alice and Edwina, who toil in the mundane setting of a British village salon, unfazed by a customer's vacation postcard reading "Mary's been kidnapped again." The plot, such as it is, involves the creation of an annual stylebook, modeled in a warped fashion after 2009's Vogue documentary The September Issue.

Elements of the absurd animate these vignettes, like "How They Threw Rocks" (November 2), which honors the Oscar-winning 1996 Ali-Foreman boxing film When We Were Kings by staging a play-by-play of a bizarre Welsh rock-hurling competition. Another Oscar winner, 2020's My Octopus Teacher, is transformed into the hilarious "My Monkey Grifter" (November 9), about a filmmaker's one-sided obsession with a diabolical zoo animal. The realism within these cockeyed concoctions reminds you time and again that this series isn't monkeying around. ★★★★★

SERIES PREMIERE
Tuesday, Oct. 25, BritBox

WHEN KAREN PIRIE (Lauren Lyle, Outlander) lies down on the job, this detective isn't loafing. She's busy concentrating, trying not to scream in frustration at the chauvinistic bosses who've assigned her a perplexing 25-year-old cold case with little confidence she'll solve it.

They should know better. Mystery fans already do, if they know the work of Scottish novelist Val McDermid, whose Tony Hill series inspired six seasons of Wire in the Blood. Let's hope for similar results for Karen, a scrappy up-and-comer who erupts in fury when it's suggested she only got this case—the 1996 murder of a barmaid that's the subject of a podcast—because of her gender.

The prime suspects, then and now, are three former college buds who discovered the body and have been haunted by secrets ever since.

Karen's search for answers leads to one of the most dramatic climaxes I've seen since Broadchurch.

America's top TV critic Matt Roush answers your burning questions

I recently saw a scene in Hulu's Reboot set in an L.A. restaurant and focusing on a very elderly waiter who slowly shuffles past. This was identical to a running gag in Netflix's The Kominsky Method. Is this an homage to a real person or an actual watering hole well known to those in the entertainment industry? —Tom T.

MATT ROUSH: Can't pinpoint an actual waiter, but these scenes were salutes to the legendary Musso & Frank Grill on Hollywood Boulevard, where many of the staff are celebrated for their longevity.

I miss truTV's The Carbonaro Effect, which hasn't aired for nearly three years. Is it gone for good? Michael Carbonaro's magic tricks were amazing. I fear your answer is that he's on some streaming channel. His show used to alternate with Impractical Jokers, and now they're on all the time. —Jim L.

MATT ROUSH: I agree about his playful illusions, but

Carbonaro

The Carbonaro Effect is no longer on the network's active roster. As you feared, the best way to watch past episodes is on HBO Max, where all five seasons are available to stream. On the plus side, Carbonaro is currently on a U.S. tour, with dates scheduled through March. Check out the michaelcarbonaro

.com website to see if he's playing near you. I bet he's just as enjoyable in person.

Why don't The Voice's coaches ever change their clothes during the auditions? I found out they take at least a week to film, so why would they have the same outfits on? —Cindy MATT ROUSH: I get asked this a lot about The Voice and similar TV talent shows, and the answer is simple. It's about editing and continuity, and because the acts aren't always shown in the order they're filmed, the wardrobe stays the same so it doesn't look like they're changing clothes all the time.

Monday, Oct. 31, 10/9c, NBC

An astronaut, a boxer and a female bounty hunter are some of the bodies time traveler Dr. Ben Song (Raymond Lee) has occupied in the sci-fi revival. But biblical heights are reached when he leaps into Father James Davenport in 1934 Coventon, Maryland. "Ben has to learn, well, how to pray and...Latin?" Lee teases. He also has to figure out how to perform an exorcism. Upping the creepy factor: "Dead bodies might be a thing."

It would be understandable if Ben's fiancée and colleague Addison Augustine (Caitlin Bassett) got spooked over this one. Nope. "She is tough as nails. There isn't much that fazes her, except when Ben's in danger," Lee says. "Do we find Ben in danger in this episode? Strong possibility!" We'll send prayers. —Jim Halterman

DEATH BECOMES THEM

Eternally hilarious hit series Ghosts celebrates Halloween with the ultimate wake-up call—a séance!—that lets Hetty face her most spirited nemesis BY MANDI BIERLY

IS THERE ANY show with more right to a high-flying Halloween episode than Ghosts? The CBS comedy smash—a Groundhog Day of the Dead, in a sense—entered Season 2 with eager new B&B owners Samantha (Rose McIver) and Jay (Utkarsh Ambudkar) looking for business while still sharing their haunted mansion with spirits who died on their historic Hudson Valley property...and remain stuck there.

Like the best treats, storylines are both delectably sweet—like narcissistic Revolutionary War soldier Isaac's (Brandon Scott Jones) budding romance with his Redcoat crush—and deliciously salty: the ongoing empowerment and sexual awakening of Sam's stifled Gilded Age ancestor Hetty (Rebecca Wisocky). And there's the other comic conceit: Only Sam has the "sixth sense" ability to communicate with dead people, after a near-fatal tumble down the stairs in the series' debut. But each episode reveals more of a spirit's history, which invariably complicates the lives of both Sam and Jay, who are equally invested in the stories.

"They have this house full of ghosts they're trying to entertain, take care of and supervise," says McIver. "They face these challenges together, as a team."

They'll need all hands on deck to make it through this Halloween. In Season 2—which recently premiered to 6.5 million viewers, up 17 percent from the October 2021 pilot—executive producers Joe Port and Joe Wiseman wanted to celebrate the holiday with a big, fun supernatural event that even Viking Thorfinn (Devan Chandler Long) hasn't witnessed in his 1,000 years: a successful séance.

Hetty suggests the occult party trick, but the request comes back to haunt her when the séance summons her nemesis, Molly the maid, the drop-dead gorgeous Irish mistress of her late husband, Elias (Matt Walsh). Viewers may recall the robber baron asked Molly's whereabouts when he emerged from the mansion's ghost-tight vault in Season 1—before descending to hell, where he belonged. "We like to follow up on little kernels we've set up in previous episodes," says Port, reminding us that Thor and Native Sasappis (Román Zaragoza) had told horndog '90s finance bro Trevor (Asher Grodman) how attractive Molly was.

Hetty has remained at odds with Molly the maid (Hannah Rose May) for more than a century

While Trevor tries to convince Molly to stay, Sam and the other female ghosts—free-spirited hippie Flower (Sheila Carrasco) and boisterous Prohibition-era jazz singer Alberta (Danielle Pinnock)—urge Hetty to use the reunion to get some closure on her husband's affair. Their plea allows Sam to preach on the late-19th-century power dynamics that pitted women against one another. "We've got four women from very different parts of history, all with a perspective that everyone else learns and grows from," says McIver.

But Hetty isn't in a forgiving mood. "All of her worst fears and nightmares are manifesting into chaos and hilarity. She gets to confront some of these fears," Wisocky says, then adds with a chuckle: "In true Hetty fashion, she only half gets the lesson." Still, no worries; Hetty has the last laugh, in a scene containing a line that may make you do a spit take. "It's always enjoyable to watch the stick-in-the-mud character say the most raunchy things because she's not aware of the double entendre," the actress hints.

Isaac is equally slow on the uptake. Although he brings new boyfriend Nigel (John Hartman) to the party, he still isn't comfortable labeling their relationship ("Murderer and victim?" quips Sasappis). Nor does Isaac want to reveal that his unfortunate ghost power is emitting a dysentery stench whenever a human walks through him. He blames the odor on earnest '80s scout troop leader Pete (Richie Moriarty). "I've been with [certain] people where the concept of farting in front of them is terrifying," says Jones. "I think this is a really good example of the way the show takes something supernatural and wacky and grounds it."

Perhaps the most important grounding presence is the ghosts' friendship with Jay, who "thinks he knows way more about ghosts than Sam does," says Ambudkar. "That was a big breakthrough for us: Rather than being the typical sitcom husband who would be like, 'Oh, those ghosts!' and 'Leave my wife alone!' he's fascinated by them," Wiseman says.

The end of the Halloween episode offers a clever test of how well Jay has learned their personalities and powers. Earlier, he'd gone off on what Ambudkar describes as "his own little treasure hunt" to retrieve an object needed to return Molly from whence she came. When he arrives home, the ghosts need to urgently communicate Sam's location to him. "He relies on them to guide him, almost Lassie-like, to help him save the day," Port says, citing the warm teamwork principle that always drives Ghosts. "[Viewers] like knowing these characters like each other." ■

Guillermo Del Toro's Cabinet of Curiosities

TUESDAY, OCT. 25

ORIGINAL SERIES Horrors of all sizes—from a brain infection to a cosmos calamity—fill the drawers of this eerie, stylish anthology curated by Del Toro. Given the filmmaker's eerie cred—he gave us popular oddities such as The Shape of Water, Hellboy and Pan's Labyrinth—you can expect plenty of genre chills. Rolling out over four days, from October 25 to 28, each installment of the eight-episode creepshow is introduced by Del Toro, à la Alfred Hitchcock and Rod Serling. Another plus: Cabinet is packed with all-star performers. Tales adapted for our screaming, er, streaming pleasure include two H.P. Lovecraft short stories—"Dreams in the Witch House," starring Harry Potter veteran Rupert Grint (above, with Daphne Hoskins) as a grieving spiritualist trying to reconnect with his late twin sister, and "Pickman's Model," with Ben Barnes (Westworld) as an artist who discovers the terrifying truth about a rival's (Crispin Glover) inspirations. Other players in the mix include The Walking Dead's Andrew Lincoln, Tim Blake Nelson (Watchmen) and Peter Weller (RoboCop). —Damian Holbrook

The Good Nurse (premiering Wednesday, Oct. 26) is Amy Loughren (Jessica Chastain, with Devyn McDowell), and she has it rough. While working crazy hours for little pay, she deals with a heart condition she needs coverage for. But a new hospital colleague (Eddie Redmayne) helps ease the burden...until investigators in this chilling, fact-based film point out that he may be responsible for killing hundreds of patients.

Manifest

FRIDAY, NOV. 4

ORIGINAL SERIES NBC's supernatural drama about a plane missing for five-plus years landed well on Netflix, which ordered this fourth and final season. The mysteries will deepen for Flight 828's survivors, starting with the usually stoic Ben Stone (Josh Dallas, below). The action resumes two years after Season 3, which saw the murder of Ben's loving wife Grace (Athena Karkanis) and kidnapping of their infant daughter Eden, both at the hands of unbalanced Angelina (Holly Taylor). "Ben is stuck in this pit of grief and anger," says Dallas of the emotions set to fuel the 20 episodes. As Ben searches for devoted son Cal (Ty Doran) get complicated. "There's an unfair blame he places on Cal for Grace's murder," Dallas says. As to why—that gets explained. Buckle up! —Jim Halterman

My Policeman

FRIDAY, NOV. 4

ORIGINAL MOVIE Time may heal all wounds, but nobody promised they would heal quickly, as this lush drama suggests. Bouncing between 1950s and 1990s timelines in Britain, the movie based on Bethan Roberts' novel follows meek schoolteacher Marion's (The Crown's Emma Corrin) early romance with charismatic policeman Tom (pop star Harry Styles) and their close friendship with dignified museum curator Patrick (David Dawson, above left, with Corrin and Styles). Regrets, secrets and pain from the past come to a head when we revisit the same characters decades later (played by Gina McKee, Rupert Everett and Linus Roache, respectively). "My Policeman challenges the idea there can be only one view of love," says Styles. "Each character experiences different kinds of love—and different consequences for not being honest." —JH

Weird: The Al Yankovic Story

FRIDAY, NOV. 4

The over-the-top accordionist was inspired to cast Harry Potter vet Daniel Radcliffe (left) after seeing him on BBC's The Graham Norton Show, where Radcliffe swiftly performed "The Elements," famed satirist Tom Lehrer's paean to the periodic table. "You have to be a pretty big nerd to want to do that, and do it on a national TV show," Yankovic notes. "And I thought, 'This guy gets it.'" The White Lotus

SEASON PREMIERE Sunday, Oct. 30, 9/8c, HBO

THE EMMY-WINNING anthology may have switched its Hawaiian resort to a European hot spot, but the White Lotus luxury hotel chain still seems to attract tourists who have lost their way. Season 2 digs into sexual politics and male-female power dynamics. Here are the other amenities.

THE SETTING Buongiorno from Italy! "The location's a little juicier," says creator Mike White, who made the most of the "eye candy" surrounding the Four Seasons' San Domenico Palace in Sicily. "There's a lot of yachting, palazzos.... They go to the Godfather house [Castello Degli Schiavi]." THE BODY As with Season 1's central murder mystery, "there will be blood on the floor," White reveals. "We tease that out at the beginning." THE RETURNEES O.G. guest and Emmy winner Jennifer Coolidge (2) checks back in as loopy Tanya McQuoid-Hunt, now wed to her Hawaii hookup, Greg (Jon Gries). THE NEW GUESTS Two couples vacationing together—played by Aubrey Plaza (6) and Will Sharpe, and Theo James (3) and Meghann Fahy—can't help privately comparing relationships. For one, White says: "Are they having better sex than us?" As Tanya's assistant, Haley Lu Richardson is all work and no play. Then a power gay (Tom Hollander, 7)—traveling with his magnetic nephew (Leo Woodall)—and his jet-setting pals take her under their wing.

But it's Michael Imperioli (1) and F. Murray Abraham (4) as Italian Americans digging into their heritage who might want to work on their present situation. "Michael's character is in the doghouse with the women in his family because of some naughty stuff he's gotten into," says White. Which leads us to... THE LOCALS Two young Sicilian ladies looking to "date" rich Americans—"sugar babies," as White calls them—"throw things into sexual chaos." THE BOSS Unlike Season 1's servile, ill-fated manager (RIP, Armond), Sabrina Impacciatore's Valentina (5) is not really in the service industry. "She scares the guests," jokes White. —Damian Holbrook

Tonight's hour: explosive! Aisha Hinds' Hen Wilson (above) takes center stage when the LAFD paramedic and the 118 respond to an eruption at the lab where her wife, Karen (Tracie Thoms), works. And it doesn't take a rocket scientist—which Karen actually is—to realize that a place containing unstable substances and high-tech equipment is a ticking time bomb. "The building houses many departments under the same roof, which come with different dangers," explains exec producer Kristen Reidel, adding ominously, "some that the 118 isn't even aware of when they arrive." Karen and Hen's budding scientist and roboticist son, sixth-grader Denny (Declan Pratt), is also on site. "Part of his project is in-person observation of Karen's day-to-day duties," Reidel says. "No one expects an emergency of this magnitude to occur." While the first responders race the clock, the episode also flashes back to Hen and Karen's past—what the EP calls "the obstacles that nearly prevented them from committing to each other, as well as the surprising force that pulled them together." Once the smoke settles, Hen finds she has some soul-searching to do. "She's had this dream of becoming a doctor," Reidel notes, "but that doesn't come without a cost." —Damian Holbrook

Tim Burton's Corpse Bride

100th EPISODE!

The Resident

8/7c, Fox

IF YOU THINK the power couple of Chastain Park Memorial Hospital can take a day off to tie the knot, think again. Urgent situations crop up for CEO Kit Voss and Dr. Randolph Bell (Jane Leeves and Bruce Greenwood, above) with no regard for the wedding planner's timetable. "There's a 'Get me to the church on time' aspect with everybody being pulled every which way," says Leeves. Here's more:

The rehearsal opens the episode, but I'm guessing things don't go as planned.

Everybody's distracted! The bridesmaids' dresses didn't quite make it, so people have to go off and find those. I'm desperately trying to get a meeting with our new governor, who's planning to slash Chastain's budget. And there's a huge medical crisis, which pulls several wedding guests and the groom himself off.

Assuming the ceremony finally gets back on track, who officiates? Jake [Conrad Ricamora], Bell's stepson. He also sings a beautiful acoustic version of Elvis Presley's "Can't Help Falling in Love" at the wedding. I was just mesmerized.

Any jitters for the bride or groom? It's more like, "Let's get this done and have a party." The wedding planner is having a fit because nothing is going as planned, and Kit says, "Don't worry, darling. We've had many weddings between us. It's just one more."

What did you think of your wedding attire? We're smartly dressed. I'm wearing a cream dress and Bruce remarks, "Really? Cream? We should have gone with red, dear." [Laughs] I love Bruce. We just laugh. We're the most childish people on the set—and we're the oldest! —Jim Halterman

An Amish Sin

MOVIE PREMIERE 8/7c, Lifetime

Told she must marry the man who sexually abused her as a child, Amish teen Rachel Albrecht (Dylan Ratzlaff, right) faces a desperate choice: Stay and live in misery and fear or run away and take her chances far from the only home she knows. In this moving drama based on real-life stories of women who were abused in religious communities, Rachel opts for the latter...and pays a price. "I hope people find courage within this movie," Ratzlaff says. "Although it's about the Amish, many people can feel inspired by her [as she's] trapped in this situation and finds the courage to break out."

Rachel's abuser, Uncle Uddo (Micah Steinke), has continued to torment her, saying at one point, "I know the wicked thoughts of your black little heart.... You're broken, Rachel." But when she tries to escape, she's sent to a facility where, she's told, "they help girls who've lost their way." Later, she's shunned by her family, including her cold, angry mother (Kellie Martin) and stern father (Troy Mundle), who blames Rachel for "tempting" her abuser. Despite the setbacks, the pious, hopeful Rachel never succumbs to despair—"I just loved the light that she was," Ratzlaff says—and finds an ally in Grace (Rukiya Bernard), a photographer who takes her in when she finally breaks free.

To connect with the story, the actress had a source that was very personal: her own Mennonite lineage. "I don't practice," Ratzlaff notes. "I'm a dancer, and they don't allow dancing." But before filming began, she called her grandmother for insights into their family history.

The current lesson is even more important. Ratzlaff hopes An Amish Sin resonates, adding: "This story is happening today." —John Hogan

Confess, Fletch

★★★★☆ 9/8c, Showtime

Retired investigative journalist Irwin M. Fletcher (a charmingly funny Jon Hamm, above) arrives in Boston on the trail of stolen artwork—and finds a dead body in his rental apartment. After calling the police, he's asked why he didn't try 911. "The emergency part is kind of over," he says, shrugging. That clever bit is clue No. 1 that this 2022 comic whodunit successfully veers from Chevy Chase's zanier '80s Fletch canon. While Fletch is out to help find his girlfriend's kidnapped billionaire dad, he also takes on a germophobe art dealer (Kyle MacLachlan) and cracks wise with his old editor (Hamm's Mad Men costar John Slattery). —Robert Edelstein

Steel Magnolias

NCIS: Los Angeles

10/9c, CBS

In tonight's opening sequence, a thrilling Top Gun-style F-35 Navy training exercise turns into a nail-biter as a plane gets in trouble and the pilot ejects. Turns out it's Special Agent Sam Hanna's (LL Cool J, above) son!

Aiden (Tye White) survives, much to the relief of his dad and grandfather, Raymond (Richard Gant). But "he gets his bell rung pretty hard," says the drama's executive producer R. Scott Gemmill. And the crash could be a career-ender: All signs point to pilot error. "Aiden has a reputation as a hot dog," Gemmill adds. "He's been reprimanded for his flight behavior."

With the NCIS team put in the awkward position of investigating the incident, Sam is barred from participating. Meanwhile, the trio of tough military Hannas grapple with what happened. "It's a lot of stubbornness in one room," Gemmill says. "There's [Sam and his dad] going through the initial shock and worry, but also trying to help Aiden remember what's going on."

His fuzzy recollection of events, plus Raymond's ongoing memory loss (possibly the result of traumatic brain injury during his stint in the Marines), gets Sam reflecting on the long-term damage caused by their careers. "Will there be a time when he needs to be looked after? These guys would rather eat a bullet than be a burden on their families," the EP says. Meanwhile, the team is going all out for Sam's sake: "They investigate mechanical error, the ground crew, something within the new technology of the jets that somebody hasn't been honest about," Gemmill says. "Hopefully, one exonerates Aiden." —Kate Hahn

WHAT'S WORTH WATCHING

PICK OF THE WEEK!

Big Sky: Deadly Trails

Wednesday, Nov. 2, 10/9c, ABC

IN HER ACCOMPLISHED 32-year acting career, country music icon Reba McEntire (above) had never played a villain until Big Sky. "That's something I've wanted to do for a while," she says. "I'm really loving it." And it shows. On the Montana-set crime drama's third season, she beams as perfectionist Sunny Barnes, who runs Sunny Day Excursions with her slightly cowed husband, Buck (McEntire's real-life beau, Rex Linn). Her tightly controlled life is rocked when a hiker and then a Sunny Day camper named Paige (Madalyn Horcher) go missing. (Paige's situation was revealed on October 19.) Fearing the involvement of her disturbed secret son Walter (Seth Gabel), who is hidden in a nearby cabin, the mama bear shows her claws. As private detective Cassie Dewell (Kylie Bunbury) closes in—and fellow country singers Lyle Lovett and Darius Rucker pop up as trackers this week—Sunny and Buck are increasingly desperate to misdirect her. McEntire dishes.

What are the consequences of Sunny's dangerous cover-up? Trying to protect Walter gets Sunny into deep trouble. Buck fights for his son, Cormac [Luke Mitchell], to get more attention from her and for Sunny to kick Walter out. We'll see a darker side in their relationship.

And how will she react to Cormac and Cassie getting close? Cassie is the thorn in Sunny's side. Sunny has to be careful what she says around Cormac. Do you think Cassie's life is in danger? Not yet. Not that I know of. The fun part about this show is we say, "Where's this going?" And sometimes [producers] say, "Well, we don't know yet. We're waiting to see what you guys do, how you react." You and Rex are also costarring in a January Lifetime movie, Reba McEntire's The Hammer, in which you play a judge. Then you'll conclude your spring concert tour by headlining Madison Square Garden for the first time. How does that feel? My father competed there at the rodeo, as did his father before him. I am so excited! —Ileane Rudolph

ABC/FRANK OCKENFELS

Retro Picks

SITCOM HALLOWEEN CLASSICS!

If you prefer to laugh your way through spooky season, don't miss these episodes today. Start fright and early with six festive installments of Bewitched (10am/9c, FETV). One standout: 1965's "Trick or Treat," in which Darrin (Dick York) is transformed into a werewolf by his mischievous mother-in-law, who casts the spell while taking the form of a child (a pre-Brady Bunch Maureen McCormick!). Meanwhile, author and innkeeper Dick Loudon's (Bob Newhart) eccentric Vermont neighbors fear they're being invaded by aliens in a memorable 1987 edition of Newhart (4:30/3:30c, Decades). There's plenty of toil and trouble in primetime with the Sabrina, the Teenage

Witch-O-Ween Marathon (8/7c, Rewind TV) airing the comedy's six Halloween episodes, including 1999's offering when the young heroine (Melissa Joan Hart, above center) tries to escape the hijinks by working. As if! A trio of Frasier (8/7c, Cozi TV) favorites includes the 2001 riot in which the psychiatrist (Kelsey Grammer) throws a bash where guests come dressed as their heroes, and his brother, Niles (David Hyde Pierce), shows up as their dad (John Mahoney). Stick around for back-to-back episodes of Roseanne (10/9c, Cozi TV). The proud prank master (Roseanne Barr) is outdone in 1993's "Halloween V" and gives birth to Jerry Garcia Conner in 1995's "Halloween—The Final Chapter." —Kate Hahn

The Kelly Clarkson Show

Syndicated, check local listings

In honor of the holiday, the host's "Kellyoke" song is "Monster Mash"! Plus, there's our cover star Rose McIver (Ghosts) and some creepy stories around the campfire.

The Price Is Right

CBS, check local listings

Daytime Pick

For today's pirate-themed episode, emcee Drew Carey dons an eye patch and hook arm (with his mic on the end of it—bravo!). Even better are the prizes, which include trips to explore a shipwreck off the coast of North Bend, Oregon; take a ghost tour in New Orleans; and dive for buried treasure in Australia's Great Barrier Reef. That is the spirit!

MAKE THAT BOO-TIFUL

The Bold and the Beautiful

CBS, check local listings

Maniacal villain Sheila Carter (Kimberlin Brown) doesn't need a little thing like Halloween to make our hair stand on end, but be warned, this stand-alone episode, commemorating 30 years since she first appeared on the soap, could definitely up the ante.

The Good Doctor

10/9c, ABC

While Shaun (Freddie Highmore, below) struggles to determine how a young patient inherited her rare hereditary condition, Park (Will Yun Lee) discovers the caretaker of a disabled man with a broken arm has his own medical issue.

The Proposal

The Rookie: Feds
10/9c, ABC

Training a wild card probationary agent like Simone Clark (Niecy Nash-Betts) was not an assignment by-the-book Carter Hope (James Lesure) asked for when he joined the L.A. bureau's new fast-response Special Investigative Unit. "Carter is definitely someone who prides himself in playing by the rules; Simone seems more inclined to make up rules that justify the results she's after," Lesure muses. Still, we've already seen their opposing approaches (her charm, his facts) meld to nab an arms dealer on the FBI's Most Wanted List—and that was just in Week 2!

Tonight, the unit's hunt for an international assassin called "The Reaper" sends the pair undercover in a women's prison in search of answers: her as an inmate, him as a guard. It'll be dangerous, yes, but Lesure promises at least one scene in the prison "may surprise and delight" viewers who appreciate the spinoff's irreverent side. As for how he feels about partnering with Nash-Betts (above, with Lesure between takes), that opportunity was "a big reason" why the Good Girls actor wanted to do the show. "Niecy sets a vibe on set: We do the work and have a good time while doing so," he says. "Her range is undeniable." —Mandi Bierly

TCM Memorial Tribute: James Caan
8/7c, TCM

Five of the late film star's more nuanced performances are spotlighted, beginning with Francis Ford Coppola's 1969 drama The Rain People, in which he quietly shines as a brain-injured former college football star on a journey of escape. It's followed by one of Caan's best, the title role in the sizzling 1981 drama Thief (10/9c).

KELLY OSBOURNE HOSTS
The Very VERY Best of the 80s
8:30/7:30c, AXS TV

Rev up the most "Rad Rides" of the decade, including Magnum, P.I.'s slick red Ferrari.

Below Deck Adventure
SERIES PREMIERE
9/8c, Bravo

Bravo's escapist soap opera—where five-star luxury meets bad behavior—adds a new element in this spinoff: adrenaline! As the motor yacht Mercury cruises Norwegian fjords, demanding guests expect to paraglide, explore caves and take extreme helicopter rides. Meanwhile, the crew work hard to rack up big tips and play hard because the hot tub is right there.

Man v. Food
9/8c, Cooking Channel

Epicurean adventurer Casey Webb hits New York's Hudson Valley for an Atomic Ghost Wings Challenge.

Black Friday
★★★☆☆ 10:30/9:30c, Starz

Bruce Campbell costars in this 2021 horror comedy, which increases the madness of the craziest shopping day of the year with a parasitic organism that turns toy store patrons into flesh-eating monsters.

Reno 911!
10:30/9:30c, Comedy Central

The Reno Sheriff's Department returned to duty in 2020, and now, new episodes of the outrageous Cops-style mockumentary are home on Comedy Central. While it's hard to imagine topping last week's concealed-carry fashion show, tonight Lieutenant Dangle (Thomas Lennon, below) and the squad decide to invest their retirement fund in a Christian water park, separate the donations after someone adds the word sex to their annual toy drive box, design a gloriously offensive cake with a baker and her protester, and have Jackie the Hooker (Kerri Kenney-Silver) guess the charges against her in a game of charades. So...mission accomplished! —MB

The First 48
SEASON PREMIERE
8/7c, A&E

Season 23 of the docuseries, about the most crucial hours of any investigation, opens with Mobile, Alabama, homicide detectives searching for suspects after two murders occur hours apart in the same complex in 2020. Following at 10/9c, Interrogation Raw returns with the jaw-dropping tale of how a 2017 plumbing repair led Canadian police to a killer who confessed to flushing body parts.

True Crime Story: Indefensible
10/9c, SundanceTV

Sharp-witted comedian Jena Friedman examines the acquittal of Casey Anthony in the 2008 death of her toddler, Caylee, and uncovers a fascinating case of "he said, he said." A trial consultant says CBS funded his mock jury in exchange for being able to air the footage on 48 Hours. One of Anthony's defense attorneys denies knowing him or that the focus group sparked her accidental drowning defense.

Alaska Daily
10/9c, ABC

Reporter Eileen Fitzgerald (Hilary Swank, right) ignores a directive to steer clear when someone she knows from her New York City days comes to Alaska. Cue the chaos!

Race for the Championship
SEASON FINALE
10/9c, USA

The high-speed fight is on to decide the final four drivers eligible to be crowned NASCAR Cup Series champ. As the reality series concludes, expect the off-track head games to only get more intense.

Lopez vs. Lopez

SERIES PREMIERE 8/7c, NBC

THIS COMEDY IS George Lopez's fourth time playing a fictional version of himself, but there's something new: He's costarring with his real-life twentysomething offspring, Mayan, who didn't speak with him for about three years. The pandemic brought them closer, and her TikToks with her divorced parents inspired the idea for a sitcom about a father and daughter reconnecting. "The show doesn't veer away from issues, which I've never really done on TV," he says. "Mayan's a great actress and comedian, so to be able to go to work and see her every day is something." He tells us more.

Your character, George, who is broke and homeless after keeping his construction business afloat during the pandemic, wants to right some wrongs with his daughter, Mayan. What inspires him? Time goes by faster than we think. George doesn't want to live without her for the rest of his life. He's willing to take responsibility for the betterment of their relationship. And she has a child. I get to be a grandfather on TV—to prepare me for being a grandfather one day in real life, hopefully. There are flashes of All in the Family's Archie Bunker and Meathead when Mayan's partner, Quinten (Matt Shively), lets George move in with their little family. That's a great dynamic, but is there a point down the line where George tells him how much he means to him? He's not going to hug him. George clashes, and sparks, with his ex, Rosie (Selenis Leyva). What's up there? There's a bit of one-upmanship. Her [home insurance] business is taking off; I'm a bit down. But will they kiss in coming seasons? That could be exciting! —Jim Halterman

A Magical Christmas Village

MOVIE PREMIERE 8/7c, Hallmark Channel

In their first pairing, Alison Sweeney and Luke Macfarlane are two strangers brought together by an enchanted heirloom. Marlo Thomas costars.

HE'S GOT ATTITUDE!
Young Rock
SEASON PREMIERE 8:30/7:30c, NBC

Season 3 of the semi-autobiographical comedy shows Dwayne Johnson's heel turn to become "The Rock" (Uli Latukefu, above), and, in 2033, how Johnson (as himself) rebounds from his fictional loss of the presidential election.

Urban Legend

Filmmaker Eli Roth's horror anthology of tales based on popular lore serves up a new hour of ick about what can happen when a simple spider bite takes a nasty turn.

Blue Bloods

Eddie (Vanessa Ray) and McNichols (Stephanie Kurtzuba) question the motives of an influencer's fans after her sister goes missing; Danny (Donnie Wahlberg) and Baez (Marisa Ramirez) are tipped off by a CI ordered by a gang to kill a rival; Frank (Tom Selleck) and Henry (Len Cariou) face protestors.

Merry Swissmas

Full House alum Jodie Sweetin (above) has another too-close-for-comfort situation in this lovely original that kicks off the cable net's "It's a Wonderful Lifetime" holiday movie season. She stars as a Chicago-based architect named Alex who heads to snowy Switzerland, where her mom is planning to open an inn by New Year's. And while there is the expected romance—Alex falls for the inn's widower-dad manager (Tim Rozon)—there's also a surprisingly emotional arc involving Alex's former bestie Beth (Mikaela Lily Davies), who is now dating her ex. "[One of the things] I really appreciated about the story was that it wasn't perfect and easy...it was a little messy," Sweetin says. "It was about redeeming that friendship."

Equally unexpected are the authentic nods to Swiss traditions (even though the film was shot in Montreal), including wintry Yule markets, the arrival of Samichlaus and his wicked assistant Schmutzli, and the nightly unveiling of handmade Advent window decorations. Adds Sweetin: "I hope people take some of those and run with them." —Damian Holbrook

Can't Hear Voices On TV?

The AccuVoice® AV157 Speaker uses patented hearing aid technology to create 12 levels of dialogue clarity.

Flat-screen TVs use tiny speakers with tinny sound. So many people have to use closed-captioning to watch a movie or sporting event. Our patented hearing aid technology lifts voices out of the soundtrack and clarifies them. The result is remarkable. The AV157 has 12 levels of voice boost – in case you need extra clarity. Only 17" wide, it fits just about anywhere. Hookup is simple – one connecting cord.

Spaceballs

Dangerous Liaisons

SERIES PREMIERE 8/7c, Starz

This smart, steamy series may share a title with the Oscar-winning 1988 film starring Glenn Close and John Malkovich, but the equally lush production is a prequel. Gritty and glamorous pre-revolutionary Paris is home to the younger, more naive Marquis de Merteuil, here known as Camille (Alice Englert), a sex worker, and her lover Valmont (Nicholas Denton, above, with Englert), a disinherited aristocrat turned mapmaker who wants his title back. He hides from her his side hustle of seducing rich women who provide him with the finer things in life.

"We meet them at a real place of struggle, in lives that they want out from," says executive producer Harriet Warner, who drew inspiration from the timeless 1782 novel. "It's a journey from innocence to experience, to corruption, especially for Camille."

The two are ready to run away together when she discovers letters from his many lovers and brokers a deal with one of them, Geneviève de Merteuil (Lesley Manville): Camille will keep her secrets for a place in her house. "Geneviève's a powerful female figure who delivers the mantra 'Avenge our sex; invent strategies that were unheard of before me,'" says Warner.

Camille's a quick study. She asks Valmont to prove his love by seducing aristocrat Jacqueline de Montrachet (Carice van Houten), whose cruel actions led to Camille's life in the brothel. It's their first wicked game of revenge. Says Warner, "They are utterly connected but also very destructive of each other." —Kate Hahn

BY YASMIN BOLAND

Scorpio (Oct. 23–Nov. 21) If there ever was a time to be like a snake and shed your skin, it would be now! Sure, it may feel a little scary to reveal a new part of yourself, but if you don't, how would you know what you're capable of?

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22–Dec. 21) You're dealing with a lot right now, but much of it may not be seen or easy to explain. Emotions and relationships could be taking a toll on your energy. If that's the case, be less available to others. Recharge your own batteries. Birthday: Ian Somerhalder 12/8/1978

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22–Jan. 19) Not everyone who smiles at you is your friend. And this week, you may realize who this applies to. As you get more in touch with your own personal values, you may not enjoy spending as much time with those you once did. Keep your distance from people who drain you. Birthday: Zoey Deschanel 1/17/1980

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20–Feb. 18) You've been working so hard these past couple of years, and it could all lead to this: You could reach the pinnacle you always wanted. Or you may realize it wasn't quite worth the effort. Be prepared for this time to be either climactic or anticlimactic, career-wise. Birthday: Raymond Lee 2/5/1987

PISCES (Feb. 19–March 20) Yearning for something more is natural, whatever that more may actually be. Maybe it's taking more vacations. Perhaps it's knowledge or wisdom or a spiritual path. Follow your heart, and lean into what your soul longs for. Birthday: Thora Birch 3/11/1982

Rebecca Romijn
11/6/1972

ARIES (March 21–April 19) Facing your fears is one of the best ways to solve the problems that life brings. Another is to improve your ability to effectively communicate. Rather than bringing more factors into play, focus on what you can eliminate. Birthday: Adrien Brody 4/14/1973

TAURUS (April 20–May 20) No one likes to hear that the relationship weather forecast looks dark and stormy. What we do forget, though, is that after the storm, when the sun peeks through the clouds, everything feels fresh, cleansed and energized. Birthday: Claes Bang 4/28/1967

GEMINI (May 21–June 20) If you've been slacking when it comes to your health and wellness rituals, it's time to turn that ship around! Real change can be made, but you need to see it as a marathon and not a sprint. Bad habits and a bad diet are no friends. Birthday: Kat Dennings 6/13/1986

CANCER (June 21–July 22) It's perfectly fine to not like or even want something you once did. Reserving the right to change your mind is totally OK. Right now, a lot of things are taxing your energy. Spend a little time alone to figure out what's most important. Birthday: Milo Ventimiglia 7/8/1977

LEO (July 23–Aug. 22) They say that home is where the heart is, and home might be where you need to be. Whether it's to recharge or sort out family dynamics, a fresh start is possible, as is real healing. Friends may need to take a back seat. Birthday: Anna Kendrick 8/9/1985

VIRGO (Aug. 23–Sept. 22) It's time to take stock and recalibrate your career and life plans. Even if you're excited to strike out in a new direction, things may not go quite so smoothly. They could actually turn out better if you trust a little more. Birthday: Martin Freeman 9/8/1971

LIBRA (Sept. 23–Oct. 22) Are you in the financial position you thought you'd be in at this age and stage of life? Either way, a cosmic update arrives. Have more confidence in yourself! Your net worth and self-worth are interlinked for a reason. Birthday: Gwen Stefani 10/3/1969

LAST ISSUE'S SOLUTION

Cheers to Peacock for giving us the Community movie we've been waiting for (returning stars include, above, Alison Brie, Joel McHale and Gillian Jacobs). What a feather in the streamer's cap!

Jeers to The Handmaid's Tale for June's (Elisabeth Moss, right) rookie mistake (spoilers for Hulu's October 5 episode ahead). Sneaking into Gilead with hubby Luke (O-T Fagbenle) to rescue their daughter would've been admirable had she trusted her gut and fled back to Canada before being caught!

Jeers to House of the Dragon's grisly dinner party from hell in HBO's October 9 hour. King Viserys' (Paddy Considine) jaw would have dropped... if he still had one.

Cheers to TV's new wave of bloodsuckers. You'd have to be undead not to love AMC's red-hot Anne Rice's Interview With the Vampire, or Madison Taylor Baez's poignant perfection as an immortal 12-year-old on Showtime's Let the Right One In.

Cheers to 9-1-1 for giving Eddie Diaz (Ryan Guzman) a true hero's journey. All the LAFD fave wants is to be the best dad to his increasingly independent son (Gavin McHugh), and it may be the most realistic crisis he's faced in six seasons on the Fox drama.

CHEERS & JEERS
BY DAMIAN HOLBROOK

Jeers to Alaska Daily for its fake news. Sorry, but the glossy and wildly overstaffed newsroom that Hilary Swank's disgraced journalist (right) was fired from in the pilot of ABC's new thriller was as laughable as the idea of a writer approving their own edits.

Jeers to Chicago P.D. for rushing Det. Jay Halstead's (Jesse Lee Soffer) exit. There had to be another way for NBC to write off Soffer than having Halstead kill a suspect, quit the force and take a military gig—all in his final hour. After 10 seasons, he deserved better.

Cheers to The Masked Singer for reuniting three iconic TV brothers. The October 5 hour exposed the masked Mummies as Brady Bunch siblings (from left) Mike Lookinland, Barry Williams and Christopher Knight, who sadly learned they would not keep on, keep on, keep on moving any further on the wacky Fox reality competition.
